April 25th is National Library Workers Day. The day recognizes the importance and contributions of the library staff who keep our libraries running while we get lost among wonderful books. What better way to observe National Library Workers Day than actually appreciating library workers for their expertise, hard work, and dedication. Friends encourage you to visit the library to show your appreciation, write them thank-you notes, or turn to social media to acknowledge our amazing staff. Whatever you choose will surely bring a smile to their faces!

Check out the Library's brand new ROMANCE section!

Did you know Romance is the most popular genre in the publishing industry? Our new section is located in the former Holiday book section.

The Artist for April is Gail Manolescu - Arts and Crafts

I have been an arts and crafts enthusiast all my life. From sewing children's clothing, especially my daughter's Halloween costumes, to scrapbooking, card making, even managing a craft store for several years. I've crocheted blankets and designed quilts for loved ones knowing they will be cherished for years to come.

I am proud to share my newest works with you: fabric hoop art. I hope you enjoy!
