The Artist for June is Lee Turner

My path to the visual arts began in earnest after my retirement from my 36 year career as a public school band director in the North Syracuse District. Onondaga Community College's classes are free to residents age 60 and older. Drawing, color theory, art design, art history and various photography courses were available for me to audit. On display are various photographs of my travels, early development techniques of Cyanotype and Van Dyke printing and photoshop manipulation. I have also included some of my watercolors, which are influenced by the craftsman and art deco styles of stained glass windows.
